Helping out at ELHS

Students helping students. Students helping teachers. Those are just some of the many activities in which our international students are involved every year. This year Su Yeon (Sue) Lee was nominated to the ELHS student council, which plans various activities throughout the year. Sue stays active with her student council duties

One such activity is a neighborhood blood drive. A local blood bank comes onto the campus, and students, teachers and neighbors donate blood for the local community. What an opportunity to support not only ELHS but also others in need through this worthy cause.

sports and activities, and still take time out of their busy schedule to make ELHS a place a special place in which to learn and do something good for others.

Run, ladies, run

Spring is here, and along with spring comes sunnier days and spring sports. Many international students are involved in track and baseball. Some students are new to both sports and have admitted that the first few practices were very tiring. (Also, the first practice after a long spring break was even more tiring!)

Freshman Joo Hee Kim and senior Hye Min Kang take a stroll around the track.

The students practice every afternoon after school and have meets or games during the week or on the weekends.

Coaches appreciate the students' willing participation, but they also expect students to make a commitment to the team. Students, show up at all the practices, make it to all the games, work hard every day. Oh, yes, ... and have fun!

Ideas and things to do with your student

The most wonderful thing you can do with your student is to talk to him/her (in English, preferably). Here are a few other inexpensive activities and ideas to try as the school year quickly draws to a close?

Inexpensive activities to do together...

- ◆ picnics
- ◆ roller-skating
- ◆ ice skating
- ◆ making bread
- ◆ playing tennis, baseball, Frisbee
- ◆ swimming
- ◆ berry picking
- ◆ getting together with another family
- ◆ bicycle riding
- ◆ making a pie
- ◆ bowling

Sports — All athletes should receive a "Time In" with sports schedules, updates, etc. Families can also receive that information via email. If you are not getting your "Time In," contact the office with your email address. It is a valuable resource for times, dates, etc. Also, don't forget to check www.elhs.org for activity updates. Spring sports continue until the end of the school year.

Prom — Juniors and seniors are making plans to attend the prom, a spring cus-
